

DEREK COOPER COLLECTION CATALOGUE

An Islands Book Trust Publication

Derek Cooper, the well-known writer and broadcaster, has kindly donated his working library of books to the Islands Book Trust. They are available for reference and research at Ravenspoint. The books are mainly about Scottish islands, and Scottish food and drink. The collection includes Derek's typewriter, and several of the awards he won during a long and illustrious career.

Derek has close family links with Lochs – his maternal grandmother was from Leurbost. While his main island retreat was on Skye, he visited Lewis frequently, and took a keen interest in developments here – witness his classic book 'The Road to Mingulay' in which he describes the estates of South Lochs and a meeting with Angus Macleod, who shared his passion for land reform.

The Islands Book Trust is grateful to Brian Smith for cataloguing of the Collection.

Note that this is still in draft form as more books are being added to the Collection
